There are from time to time mornings
when especially the world seems to begin anew. Mornings of creation, I call them.
Mornings when men are new born, men who have the seeds of life in them.

The person whose second toe is longer than his great toe is born to rule.

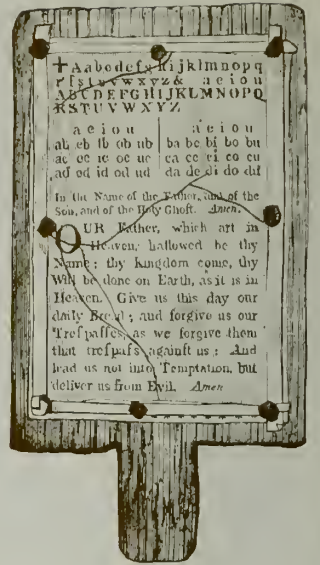

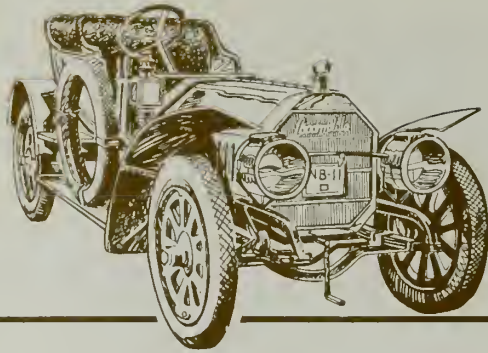

. . . and so Southeastern begins to become a memory to those of us who must leave; many experiences have left their mark within us during our short stay; and we have left our mark also; we have become a part of the history of this school, to be remembered by some, forgotten by others.

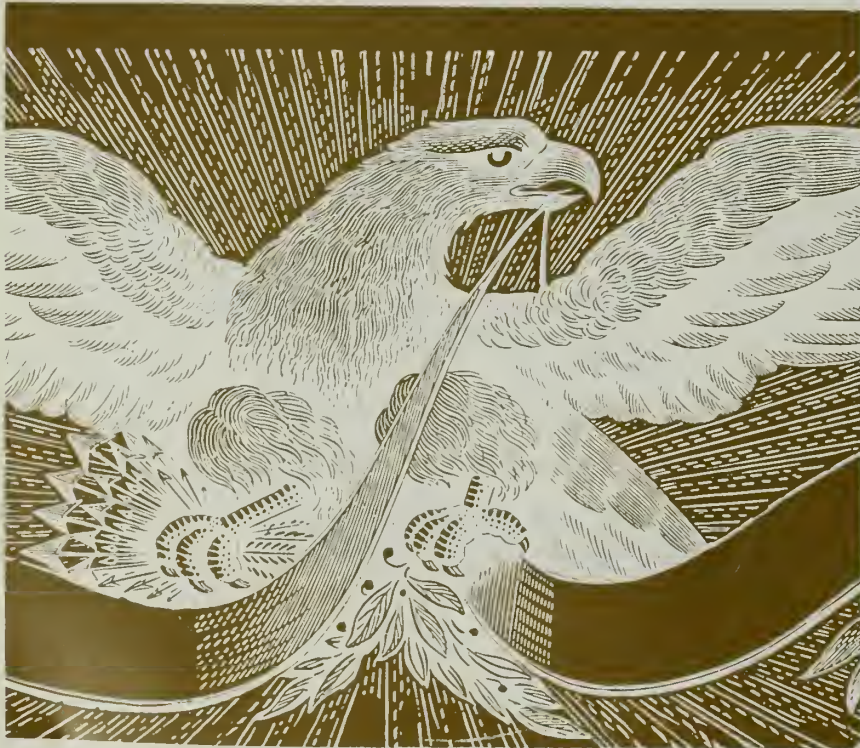

It is with these thoughts that we, the Seniors, dedicate this book to the premise that what we have given will benefit those who follow us and what we have taken will help to improve our world.

THE CLASS OF 1976

SOUTHEASTERN SPORTS

On the following pages are the athletes of our school; they come to Southeastern, as do the entire student population, from nine different surrounding communities. These communities are rich in the heritage of our country.

East Bridgewater, for example, possesses a plot of land on West Union Street known as the Rogers Sheldon mill site. The history of this site dates back to at least 1760 when the Keith Iron Works was located there making it one of the first iron slitting mills in this country.

West Bridgewater is the site of the famous Pulpit Rock; originally located on one side of the Town River. The Rock is now located in West Bridgewater Memorial Park. The first minister of Bridgewater, Reverend James Keith, preached his first sermon on this rock in 1664.

On November 27th, 1707, the Town of Norton was incorporated. It had a population of 1,966 people, consisting of farmers, coppersmiths, shoemakers, carpenters, weavers, machinists, painters and one physician.

Mansfield received its name in honor of William Murray, Earl of Mansfield, Nottinghamshire, England. Captain Myles Standish came to this piece of land to give it its name and stopped at a place called Cobbler's Corner, which still stands today.

Brockton was originally part of the common lands of the old Plymouth Colony. In 1649, the land now designated as Brockton was deeded to Captain Myles Standish by Chief Massasoit following a transaction involving merchandise valued at approximately $30.00.

Sharon is one of the oldest communities in the Commonwealth, having been settled in 1637. The first iron was discovered in Lake Massapoag and with this iron came the first cannon in the area.

Easton was originally part of a large area of land purchased from the Indians by Captain Thomas Willett for the original Plymouth Colony.

Foxboro was named after Charles James Fox, an Englander who opposed the king's treatment of the colonies and defended the conduct of the colonists. The Foxboro Volunteers who fought at Bunker Hill were proud to name their town after such a man.

Stoughton, incorporated in 1726, was one of the largest towns in Massachusetts; it included by present day standards the towns of Canton, Sharon, Avon, parts of Foxboro, Dedham, Westwood, Walpole, Norton, Wrentham and Brockton.

When Coach Ayvazian assembled his players in August for their first practice it was obvious that this years team had exceptional talent and experience. The team finished in second place last year, and this years squad set out to achieve what no other Southeastern Football team has done - to win the Mayflower League Championship.

The Hawks opened up with three shutouts; the most impressive one being over cross town rivals, West Bridgewater 30-0. The Hawks then defeated the defending League Champions, Apponequet 26-0, and were on their way to the title. Unfortunately, due to some key injuries mid-way through the season which had shattered the Hawks dreams of an undefeated season with back to back losses to Provincetown and Duxbury; however, the ball club proved to be true champions and came back to win the rest of their games, of which two were considered "must" games as the Hawks disposed of Nantucket and Manchester with ease.

The arch rival, Blue Hills, were no threat to the powerful Hawk machine as they were handily defeated by a score of 40-7.

One of the key factors to the success of this years team, and cannot be overlooked, is the playing of Big Ed Nelson, our all Scholastic Fullback. Ed scored 106 points and gained 1,082 yards, his third season over the 1000 yard mark and second over the 100 point mark.

Captain Jim Brodie along with many outstanding seniors and underclassmen, too numerous to mention, deserve a great deal of credit - therefore we salute Our Champions - a job well done by all of you.

The game of golf probably began in Scotland about 1100 A.D. It originated from a game played by Romans who occupied parts of England and Scotland from about 100 B.C. to A.D. 400. The game was called paganica. It was played in the open country side with a bent stick and a leather ball stuffed with feathers.

The origin of hockey has been credited to many people. Some say it was a brainstorm of British soldiers stationed in the Canadian cities of Halifax and Kingston in 1853. Others say it was students at McGill University in Montreal. But most people say it was R. F. Smith from Montreal who made the first rules of hockey in the late 1870's. But whoever did it, by 1879 there were frequent and exciting games in Montreal.

Baseball evolved from 2 English games - cricket and rounders - in the late 19th century.

1845 - NBL (National Baseball League) rules were established.

1846 - 1st interclub game played on June 19.

1858 - National Association of Baseball (amateur).

During the Civil War, soldiers taught the game to other soldiers.

1869 - 1st all-pro team: Cincinnati Red Stockings.

1871 - National Association of Pro Baseball Players.

1874 - Boston Red Stockings and Philadelphia Athletics go to play in Ireland.

Around 1900, the game came to be known as Baseball; however, before this it was known as Base Ball.

The Six Million Dollar Woman

"Back off Jack."

"Here, make a lay-up, Dale."

Everybody was Kung-Fu fighting.

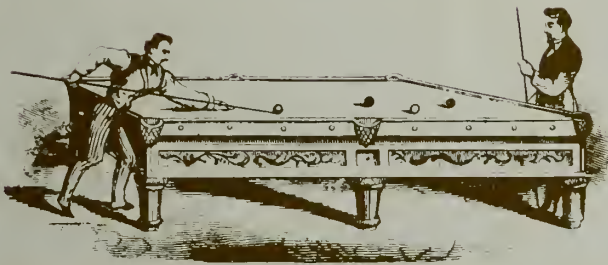

"Two hamburgs, two French fries, and two cokes, please."

"I think my battery's running low!"

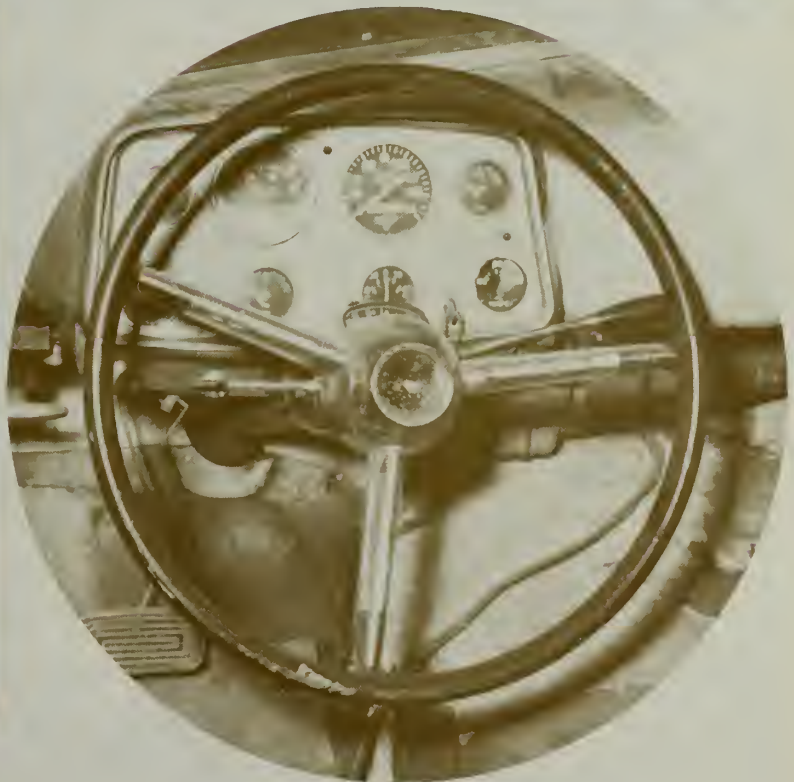

Custodians

"Boy, do I have a headache."

"You'll never catch me!"

All because I left the keys in the car.

"Oh, knocked down again."

"Peek-a-boo"

"This time I won't miss it."

AND NOW "The Bubbler"

"Hold your head up high!"

Making the winning point.

"Hey, a streaker!!"

There's a sucker born every minute.

"Look, a basketball."

The tree of wisdom.

"It's not polite to point."

"Get out there and line up backwards."

"Use the Drano and call me in the morning."

Setting up to make a goal.

Small engine repair.

"Look out, here comes a home run."

"Catch this, Joe Namath!"

"Hey, hey, hey, Marge!"

"Hey, hey, hey, Al!"

Precision?

Our fearless leader.

"Eat your heart out, Raquel!"

"Hello there!"

Candidates for Student Government Day

He went that-a-way or was it the other way?

Refugee from the junkyard.

Where's the ball?

Look at that?

Two heads are better than one.

Connect blue with red, or was it . . .

Baseball Coach Peter Hanson

Who me?

Howdy there I'm Glen Campbell.

Casey at bat.

Our future president.

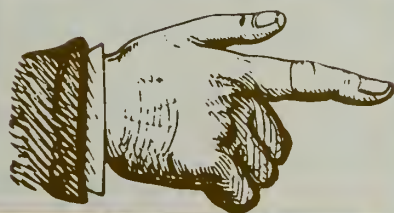

Coach

Do you like my new hat?

One tug and the school falls down.

Get away from me.

Wake me up when it's my turn.

A swift kick.

Where's my airplane.

The basketball is mine!

Then there she was, walking down the aisle.

I think I'll switch to ballet.

You're not suppose to tackle in hockey.

Your basket's that way.

And now for the next course girls, "Brick Lifting."
